Sprott Junior Uranium Miners ETF	$73	0.80%

How Did the Fund Perform Last Year?

The Sprott Junior Uranium Miners ETF returned -17.40% for the 12 months ended December 31, 2024. For this period, the three largest contributors to performance were Uranium Energy Corp, CanAlaska Uranium Ltd. and Anfield Energy Inc. The three largest performance detractors were Paladin Energy Ltd., Boss Energy Ltd. and Global Atomic Corp.

Junior uranium miners experienced healthy consolidation in 2024 after 2023's breakout year. The uranium market in 2024 was defined by persistent supply deficits as mine production continued to fall short of reactor demand. Geopolitical risks shaped the year, with disruptions in Niger, Russia's retaliatory ban on enriched uranium exports, and Kazakhstan's inability to meet production guidelines underscoring supply vulnerabilities. Demand strengthened, driven by nuclear energy's growing role in the energy transition and energy-intensive sectors like artificial intelligence. Long-term contracting prices hit a 16-year high, but the volume remained well below the replacement rate, which increases the urgency for more contracting in the future. Despite the correction, uranium's structural deficits and rising demand reinforced the market's strength throughout the year. Ultimately, the long-term fundamentals were outweighed by profit-taking and macroeconomic uncertainty, which led to a decline in junior uranium miners.
